

How to submit the Intent to Seek Occupation Certificate (ITSOC)

Intention to seek an occupation certificate is a process that starts with the submission of the Expected Completion Notice (ECN). This is a requirement under the Residential Apartment Buildings (Compliance and Enforcement Powers) Act 2020.

The Developer can create an Intent to Seek Occupation Certificate (ITSOC) case via the building work case on 'my development' page to submit an ECN to NSW Fair Trading.

Remember that for every occupation certificate you are planning to apply for, whether part or full, you must submit an ECN each time. In the Building Work case on the NSW Planning Portal (the portal), the developer can create multiple ITSOC cases. (The number of ITSOC cases must equal the number of occupation certificates being sought).

The option to create the ITSOC case will only be available after the registered building practitioner has lodged the initial set of regulated designs and declarations. When creating the ITSOC case, the developer will need to complete the following information on the form:

- Enter the Expected Completion Notice (ECN).
- Determine eligibility to pay the building work levy.
- Determine eligibility to pay a strata building bond (not applicable for class 3 and 9c).

After the ITSOC case has been submitted, the developer will have the option to enter an Expected Completion Amendment Notice or withdraw the ITSOC case, if required.

This guide will demonstrate the steps required to initiate and submit the ITSOC case, amend the expected completion notice date and withdraw an ITSOC case.

Initiate case

1. Expand the building works section, then click actions against the building work case.

Enter expected completion notice

Note: After submitting the ITSOC case, the expected completion notice date can be amended at any time via the Expected Completion Amendment Notice option on the actions menu. If you intend to apply for an occupation certificate within +/-60 days of the original expected completion notice date than there is no need to submit an amendment.

Note: The expected completion notice date must not exceed 12 months from the current date.

Eligibility to pay the building work levy

The Residential Apartment Buildings (Compliance and Enforcement Powers) Amendment (Building Work Levy) Regulation 2022 introduced the requirement to pay a building work levy, where eligible. The portal will ask a series of questions to determine eligibility and the amount as part of the Expected Completion Notice submission.

Eligibility to pay a strata building bond

When the ECN is submitted, the eligibility to pay a strata building bond will be assessed. If eligible, the developer will be able to start an application within ITSOC case, but the application cannot be submitted until the development is nearing completion and the building practitioner is ready to make the building compliance declaration.

This is to ensure that a building bond is associated to the latest version of the regulated designs in the document repository, and they reflect what has been built.

There is no requirement to submit a strata building bond when a class 3 or 9c development is selected.

When the Strata Building Bond case has been submitted, NSW Fair Trading will assess the application and may request further information before agreeing the value of the bond. This process happens at the same time as the occupation certificate audit assessment. For more information refer to the Strata Schemes Management Regulation 2016 and the quick reference guide 'Developer – How to submit a Strata Building Bond application'.

5. Indicate if a strata plan is to be registered.

Next steps

Every Expected Completion Notice will be sent to NSW Fair Trading for assessment on whether an Occupation Certificate Audit will take place. If the building work is chosen for audit, then the developer is notified at least two to three months prior to the estimated completion date provided.

If the building work is not chosen, the status of the intent to seek occupation certificate case will reflect an audit was not required. Case status will change to 'pending OC issuance.
